Figure 1. The effect of the concentration of the Agrobacterium suspension on the transformation efficiency of Agrobacterium strains. The Agrobacterium strains were grown in YEA medium for 24 h at 28 °C. The cell concentration was adjusted to 10⁸ cells/ml. The cells were then mixed with the plant tissue and the transformation efficiency was determined. The results are shown as the mean ± SD of three independent experiments. The asterisk indicates a significant difference (p < 0.05) between the control and the treated groups.

Figure 1 is a line graph showing the relationship between the percentage of total effort and the percentage of total catch for four fish species: Yellow perch, Rock bass, White perch, and Striped bass. The x-axis represents the 'Percentage of total effort' from 0 to 100, and the y-axis represents the 'Percentage of total catch' from 0 to 100. Yellow perch (solid line with circles) shows a high catch for low effort, while Rock bass (dashed line with triangles) shows a high catch for high effort. White perch (dotted line with squares) and Striped bass (dash-dot line with diamonds) show intermediate catches across the effort range.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The control group consisted of 10 men who did not participate in any physical activity during the study. The training group consisted of 10 men who participated in a 10-week training program. The training program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The sessions were performed at a heart rate of 150 beats per minute. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during the training sessions. The results showed that the training group had a significantly higher HR and HRR than the control group at the end of the 10-week training program. The HR increased from 70 to 80 beats per minute, and the HRR increased from 30 to 40 beats per minute. The control group showed no significant change in HR and HRR. The results suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the HR and HRR of sedentary middle-aged men.
